BIVERIS

was born out of passion – from people who for years have been creating complete, ready-to-market solutions, from the very first spark of an idea to a refined, finished dietary supplement. We are not a typical contract manufacturer that simply packages raw materials according to a fixed scheme.

Biveris is a team of visionaries, biotechnologists, and specialists united by one goal: creating innovative, effective, and uncompromisingly high-quality nutraceutical products.

Every formula is developed with great attention to detail – from concept and research, through raw material selection, to the final product form. The result stands out for its high absorption, bioavailability, and clean composition. We work so that each supplement is not just another product on the market, but a real answer to the body's needs and the expectations of conscious consumers.

Biveris offers more.

We enable full-scale product development – including the design, testing, and industrial production of nutraceutical raw materials that can ultimately become part of your product. Thanks to collaboration with partners within our group, we use a wide range of production technologies such as extraction, membrane and adsorption separation, homogenization, drying, agglomeration, coating, and many other advanced processes.

We deliver these raw materials in modern applications, including gummies, drink powders, ODT tablets, capsules, emulsions, and other formats that we can also develop to meet your specific needs.

Welcome to the world of Biveris – where passion meets science, and innovation goes hand in hand with responsibility. This is where we create supplements that truly matter.

As a full-scope CDMO, Biveris delivers a wide range of finished product forms, all manufactured in-house and developed with the same attention to quality, functionality, and innovation that defines our brand.
